Mystery Tulip Murderer Strikes

Someone, or something, is killing the tulips of New South Haverford, Virginia. Residents of this small town are shocked and dismayed by the senseless vandalism that has struck their tiny town.

New South Haverford is known for its extravagant displays of tulips in the springtime, and a good portion of its tourist trade relies on the people who come from as far as New Hampshire to see what has been estimated as up to two hundred thousand tulips that bloom in April and May.

Or at least the tourists had been flocking to New South Haverford until last week, when over the course

Teach your students using the books the professionals use

Although our books are written for professional programmers who need to master new job skills, there have always been instructors teaching job-oriented curricula who've adopted our books. For example, our books are used:

- in college and university MIS programs that focus on providing students with practical, real-world experience
- by technical institutes and community colleges that focus on the skills that employers are looking for
- in Continuing Ed and Extension programs where the students are professionals who are expanding their skills

So if your program fits one of those profiles, please take a look at our books. I'm confident you'll discover a new level of structure, clarity, and relevance that will benefit both you and your students.
